Reagan, Carter grab early primary leads

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—Republican challenger Ronald Reagan clung to a narrow lead over President Ford while former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter outdistanced the crowded Democratic field Tuesday night to win New Hampshire's lead-off presidential primary election.

Carter was polling about 30 per cent of the vote in the splintered Democratic primary, running at a rate that moved him ahead of the candidate pack in the marathon that will lead to White House nomination.

The Republican race was closer, with Reagan maintaining the edge. But Ford's national campaign manager said the President would eke out a victory.

With 19 per cent of the anticipated Republican vote counted, Reagan had 13,575 votes or 52 per cent, Ford had 12,784 or 48 per cent.

Howard H. Callaway, the Ford campaign chairman, made his prediction long distance, from Washington, as the New Hampshire ballots were tallied. He said Ford would finish the night just ahead of Reagan in "a dead heat, a very close race." But he said that would be enough to represent an important victory because New Hampshire is Reagan's best state outside the South.

Much of that early vote was coming from small towns where Reagan had figured to do well, and some of it was from Manchester, where the Union-Leader, the state's largest newspaper, had ardently backed Reagan.

Among the Democrats, with 11 per cent of the estimated turnout tallied, the lineup was:

Carter 3,208 or 30 per cent.
Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona 2,488 or 24 per cent.

Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana 2,028 or 19 per cent.

Former Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma 1,219 or 12 per cent.

Sargent Shriver, 1,100 or 10 per cent.

Among nine minor candidates, only Ellen McCormack of Bellmore, N.Y., the anti-abortion candidate, showed up in the rankings, with two per cent. And there were scattered write-in votes for Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

In contrast to the crowded Democratic ballot, the Republican race was clear, and Ford said he expected to win it. Reagan avoided such a prediction, but he did say in Macomb,

Ill., that his polls "have been rather optimistic."

"There's been some that have shown a margin, a slight margin," he said. That was the closest his camp said to saying he was ahead.

But as he returned to Concord to wait out the returns, Reagan was back to the more cautious prediction of his campaign strategists, saying he would consider "anything over 40 per cent" to be a victory.

The presidential preference vote was not binding. The separate election of national convention delegates was, with the candidates fielding slates of delegates pledged to support them next summer.

Republicans chose 21 delegates, Democrats 17.

It was the windup of New Hampshire's longest primary campaign, and only the first installment in the most arduous route of elections that presidential candidates have ever faced.

Before it ends on June 8, there will be primary elections in 30 more states.

Ford is entering them all, although he is not campaigning everywhere. He has criticized candidates who-like Reagan-are entering selected contests and skipping others, on grounds they are ducking the tough ones.

Next Tuesday, there will be two more primaries. Ford is unopposed in Vermont and is expected to win easily in Massachusetts, where there has been no organized Reagan campaign effort.

The next major Republican collision comes in Florida, on March 9, and the conservative vein that runs through the GOP there is a major asset for Reagan. Ford is to campaign in Florida on Saturday and Sunday.

Mace sees strong case for more funding

By Ray Urcel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU has a strong case to present to the Illinois Legislature for additional state funding, George R. Mace, acting vice president for fiscal affairs, said Tuesday.

Mace said the amount of money the University receives from the state will depend upon the amount of money available and whether Gov. Daniel Walker uses his amendatory veto.

"The University was asked to take on an additional number of students without receiving additional funding. I think, unquestionably, the case for additional funding is there," Mace said. "My question is how much money will the University receive," Mace said.

He said that the legislature is confronted with a difficult problem because of the present fiscal situation of the state.

Mace said Walker can use his amendatory veto to reduce the amount of money that the General Assembly appropriates for SIU.

"An assessment of how much money SIU may get will not be forthcoming until the legislation has been completed and signed by the governor," Mace said.

Last summer Walker reduced SIU's appropriation by six per cent to balance the state budget.

Mace said the SIU Board of Trustees staff office is the liaison between the two SIU campuses and the executive agencies of the state and the legislature.

William I. Hemann, financial affairs officer for the board, said the trustees must approve a request for a supplementary appropriation from the state before a request for additional funds can be made.

"The drafting of legislation would be dependent on a couple of consequences down the road," Hemann said. "It might depend on the governor's budgetary message and the amount of revenue available. I agree that SIU-C has a very strong case," Hemann said.

Walker is scheduled to present his budgetary recommendations to the General Assembly in Springfield March 3. Mace noted that Walker and a number of legislators he has talked to are opposed to a tuition increase as the means to obtain additional money.

Mace said the amount of money given to SIU will not be influenced by the number of students who vote in the election. A higher percentage of elderly persons vote than do college students, he said. "I don't think the decision will be made" on the number of votes, Mace said. "I think the decision will be made on the basis of resources (dollars) available."

Other state programs such as highways, transportation and medical care are always competing for dollars, Mace added.

Shooting incident findings kept secret

By Dana Henderson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Student Life Office has refused to release the findings of a special administrative panel formed to investigate the shooting incident on Greek Row Dec. 6.

Open hearings were conducted by the panel Feb. 10 and 11 concerning charges brought against four members of Kappa Alpha Psi and two members of Phi Beta Sigma involved in the incident.

According to the Student Conduct Code, if a hearing is open, any decision and all recommended sanctions resulting from an open hearing are to be posted in the Student Life Office for at least 24 hours.

Harvey Welch, dean of student life, said the reason for not making the panel's findings public is that "this part of the Student Conduct Code doesn't apply to administrative panels."

Will Travelstead, assistant dean of student life, and member of the panel said, "We set aside the normal guidelines and formed an administrative panel because of the number of people involved."

"We felt that it would be unfair for a student judicial board to hear the cases because of the time board members would be required to devote," Travelstead said. "This was a decision that was agreed to by the students charged," he said.

"We don't think it would be fair to the students involved to release our decision before they have a chance to go through the appeal process," Travelstead said.

So far, a decision has been reached on only one of the six men. Another hearing is scheduled for 4:15 p.m. Wednesday in the student life conference room to clear up some discrepancies in testimony and possibly gather more information for further charges to be brought in the case, Travelstead said.

Other members of the administrative panel conducting the investigation are Carl Harris, coordinator for University student judicial systems, and George Jones, assistant coordinator for University student judicial systems.

J-Board clears path for ruling on Diggle

By Mike Springston
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Campus Judicial Board for Governance has clarified one of the qualifications for the student president and vice president as stated in the Student Government Constitution.

The board ruled that the president and vice president must have successfully completed six semester hours per term for two out of three terms prior to taking office.

Acting Student President Jim Wire was asked by Harvey Welch, dean of student life, to request the hearing after Doug Diggle stepped down from the student presidency following his academic suspension by the Graduate School. Diggle has since sought reinstatement as president by re-enrolling as an undergraduate.

Welch said he will accept only Wire's signature on Student Government purchase requisition forms. Welch said his office is taking this precaution to prevent legal problems if Diggle is ruled ineligible.

"We should only honor Wire's signature until this thing is cleared up and it isn't cleared up yet," Welch said.

Wire had asked the judicial board to define the word "term" as it applies to Article Three, Section Two, Part A of the constitution.

Wire said he wanted to know if the University's summer session were considered a term in the constitution. The board has ruled that it is.

Paul Risk, acting chairman of the judicial board, said the board hearing is one of four steps which Welch said is necessary before Diggle can resume his position as student president.

Mace praises Gentry, plans unit re-evaluation

By Ray Urchel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

George R. Mace, vice president for University relations, said Tuesday that he will have more time to devote to the University relations unit since the appointment of Robert E. Gentry as vice president for fiscal affairs.

Mace, who has been serving as acting vice president for fiscal affairs since July 1, said a review of the University relations area is being completed and should be released by March 15.

He said the purpose of the study is to re-evaluate the University relations unit's priorities and goals.

Mace said the SIU Foundation, area service and alumni service divisions of University relations do not have sufficient staffs or funds to carry out their functions. He said money and staff may be transferred from other areas to compensate for the change in priorities.

Mace, who was named to the University relations position last May, said the study involving all portions of the unit, "is an attempt to take resources that we have and get the greatest impact for those services."

He said he still needs the approval of the vice presidents for academic and student affairs and President Warren Brandt before these changes can be implemented.

The re-evaluation may cause some personnel to be shifted to different positions and may cause some persons to be given additional responsibilities, Mace said.

Mace has said he is considering changing the role and location of the

The other requirements are that Diggle step down and let Wire assume the office of acting president, that he re-enroll as a student in the University and that he be in good academic and disciplinary standing.

Risk said he was not sure how the judicial board ruling affects Diggle's status as president. Risk said the Student Senate is the only Student Government body with the power to determine if a president is ineligible to hold office.

"Whatever's here is up to the Student Senate to look at," Risk said.

Welch said the information would be relayed to Wire so that the Student Senate could determine if Diggle is eligible.

"This (judicial board decision) didn't make a judgement as to Doug's eligibility. It only defined the word term," Welch said.

The only requirement still in question is whether Diggle completed six semester hours of class for two out of the three terms prior to his taking office, Risk said.

The three terms would be summer 1974, fall 1974 and spring 1975. Diggle was enrolled as a student for each of those terms but said he did not remember the number of hours he took during those terms.

Risk said student candidates should be screened more thoroughly to prevent a recurrence of such an incident.

"This could have been resolved a year ago," Risk said.

Election Commissioner Len Swanson said candidates are asked to make their records public, but they are usually not examined unless someone requests an investigation.

Chicago based public relations office. He said these considerations will be included in the re-evaluation.

Mace said that he is very pleased that SIU was able to hire Gentry. Gentry is still serving in his post as vice president of business and finance at the 14-campus University of Wisconsin.

"I think we have found a qualified person who will make an excellent contribution to SIU," Mace said. Gentry, who is expected to arrive at SIU about April 1, is being kept informed of budgetary matters at SIU.

"If he does have time free it would be advantageous to the University to have him here, but we have not made any plans about trips," Mace said.

Gentry's appointment is subject to the approval of the Board of Trustees. His salary will be announced at that time.

Council to consider liquor license issue

By Terri Bradford

Amendment of a city ordinance prohibiting the sale of liquor within 1500 feet of a classroom building was discussed at an informal meeting of the Carbondale City Council on Monday.

Council members will vote on adoption of the amendment in a formal meeting Monday. If adopted, the amendment would allow liquor licenses to be issued within 1,500 feet of a classroom building.

The prohibition was first established by the State Dram Shop Act and became

Hearst had dual personality, says psychiatrist

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A defense psychiatrist told jurors Tuesday that Patricia Hearst adopted "alternative personalities," becoming first/ the revolutionary "Tania" and later a woman named "Pearl." Dr. L.J. West said that when he first met the newspaper heiress three weeks after her arrest last September, she was "a person without an identity."

West's testimony in Hearst's behalf, strongly opposed by the prosecution at her bank robbery trial, closely paralleled her own witness stand account of the suffering she endured at the hands of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army. The doctor, who examined her about 10 days after her arrest, said she was then mentally ill. Another examination nine days ago showed marked improvement, he said, but she still suffers from "survivors' syndrome," fearing that she will be killed.

Chinatown replaces France as drug capital

PARIS (AP)—The men who broke the "French Connection" have a new, major concern—the "Chinese Connection," a web of drug intrigue spreading across the world from Southeast Asia. The past 18 months have seen the narrow streets of Amsterdam's Chinatown replace Marseille, France, as the narcotics capital of Europe. From Amsterdam, heroin has spread around Europe and some is reaching the U.S. eastern seaboard.

Brezhnev maps out next five years

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev promised "redoubled energy" Tuesday in the pursuit of peaceful coexistence with the West but said the Kremlin intends to continue support for "liberation" struggles abroad, such as in Angola. The 69-year-old Brezhnev made his pledge on the opening day of the 25th Soviet Communist party congress in a speech intended to chart this country's course for the next five years.

Brezhnev forcefully repeated Moscow's intention to continue its aid to the leftist Popular Movement (MPLA) government in Angola as a matter of "revolutionary conscience" and said it would also support other ideological allies involved in struggles.

Howlett says bill didn't aid scrap-iron industry

CHICAGO (AP)—Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett said Tuesday that a junk-car bill he supported in the Illinois General Assembly "didn't make any money for anybody." Howlett told newsmen at a meeting of Chicago Democratic party workers that the bill, which eliminated a $2 fee formerly paid to process junk cars through his office, "just got more cars off the streets to clean up the streets and highways of the State of Illinois."

Specifically, Howlett said that the measure did not make money for the M.S. Kaplan Co., a major scrap iron dealer. The company owns the Sun Steel Co., which paid Howlett a $15,000 annual fee throughout his 15 years in state elective office. He resigned as a consultant for the firm Feb. 2.

Howlett knocks Walker's road program

(AP)—Democratic gubernatorial contender Michael J. Howlett said Tuesday that his primary opponent, Gov. Daniel Walker, has "found tens and hundreds of millions for pork barrel projects" in the state roadbuilding program. But Howlett's most powerful supporter, Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, criticized Walker for not spending enough road-building money in the city.

Howlett, the Illinois secretary of state who is challenging Walker in the March 15 Democratic primary election, said in a statement that "in three years the governor has failed to complete nearly $650 million in approved projects while spending nearly $150 million on projects outside the Annual Highway Program."

Buzbee to address S-Senate, students in center Wednesday

State Senator Kenneth Buzbee, D-Carbondale, will speak at the Student Senate meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Ballrooms A and B of the Student Center.

Buzbee will talk for about 20 minutes on higher education in Illinois before answering questions from the audience, Student Senator Kevin Crowley, who arranged Buzbee's appearance, said.

Crowley said Buzbee will also answer questions in the lounge outside the ballrooms during the regular senate meeting.

Everyone is welcome and refreshments will be provided, Crowley said.

a part of city ordinances about 50 years ago.

The City Liquor Commission, composed of members of the City Council, currently regulates liquor licenses. The Commission follows guidelines established by the Liquor Code of the City of Carbondale and the Carbondale Revised Code of 1973.

"The problem with liquor is not the distance between the business and campus. SIU seems more interested in obtaining liquor on campus, than nearby," Mayor Neal Eckert said.

"I don't think we have established the principle of not awarding any more licenses," Eckert said.

Councilman Archie Jones said he thinks businesses want to get closer to SIU with hard liquor.

"I don't see a problem with the 1500 foot restriction, as far as the University is concerned. The University undoubtedly knows what we're talking about due to the publicity in the news media. If they (SIU officials) were really interested, they would have shown up here to talk about it," Jones said.

Mayor Eckert told council members he would write letters to University officials and the SIU Student Senate informing them of the proposed amendment and how it could affect the campus.

An emergency plan to be followed in the event of fires and tornadoes was reviewed by council members. Prepared by R. W. Alexander, civil defense director, and the Carbondale Fire Department, the plan will be initiated in Unity Point School District No. 140.

Although technically located outside Carbondale's city limits, council members agreed the district was under the jurisdiction of the greater Carbondale area.

Similar plans have been put into effect in Carbondale schools. School buildings will be inspected prior to the tornado season to determine if adequate shelter areas have been chosen and if adjustments are needed.

Blackshere earns "aggressive" reputation

By Judy Vandewater
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Margaret Blackshere, secretary of the SIU Board of Trustees, has earned a reputation for being outspoken and aggressive. Blackshere says she cannot count the times she has been called "pushy" or "gutsy."

"I'm simply carrying on the role of a board member," she said without apology. Blackshere, the first female member of the SIU Board, was appointed by Gov. Daniel Walker in 1973. At the February board meeting she was unanimously re-elected board secretary.

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of five articles dealing with the role of women in the University. This series will feature interviews with some of the women who affect policy at SIU.

She is a member of the board's executive committee which is empowered to make University policy decisions when the full board cannot be called into session.

Blackshere said she has never been made to feel like a "token" female on the board. "I wouldn't think they considered me anything but equal." She said one earns respect by being involved and staying informed on issues.

Disagreements have arisen between Blackshere and other board members "because of where I'm coming from." Blackshere, a grade school teacher, is the first public employee to serve on the board. The other board members are all businessmen.

At the Feb. 12 board meeting a resolution was passed to delay action on the collective bargaining issue until the Illinois legislature establishes guidelines.

Blackshere, who is also vice president of the Illinois Federation of Teachers, was the only board member to oppose the delay. "The board was not aware of the other side of the issue," she said. "They are becoming enlightened on the subject" and are beginning to realize that "it's not going to be beautiful all the time."

"Collective bargaining can work," Blackshere said. "The board is going to have to give a little."

Blackshere generally believes in swaying people with psychology. "You don't have to make a confrontation out of an issue. There are key times in an amiable situation when you can make your point."

Blackshere said she makes an effort to hear all sides of an issue before voting. "Usually what I do is direct my questions to the constituents being affected by a motion," she said. "If they are satisfied, then I am satisfied."

"We have much more discussion now than when I came on the board," Blackshere said, but she would like to see increased constituency input. The board's job is easier when diverse groups voice their opinions and listen to the board's point of view, she said.

"If they know why a decision was made by the board it would be a hell of a lot easier for them to deal with it," she said.

Student participation is "a two-edged sword," Blackshere said. "Some students would like to become involved, but they don't know who to go to or what questions to ask. We have to open the doors to them, and I'm not sure where the door is either."

Blackshere said she is constantly learning more about the bureaucratic structure at SIU. "The key people already know what channels to take to get things done."

Blackshere said she finds it difficult to keep informed on all sides of the issues. "That is hard to do, especially when you have already formed an opinion." She said she likes hearing from students and people in the community. "If they come and talk to me, I find out about the other sides of issues. I may not agree with them but I will listen."

Blackshere believes constituents in any form of government can effect change. She is running as an uncommitted delegate from the 23rd district to the Democratic National Convention.

"I want input on issues I think are important," Blackshere is a staunch supporter of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA). "ERA means equal rights for everybody, not just those who are pushy, bitchy and aggressive."

Does she consider herself a feminist? "I have wrestled with that a lot and I think it's more than feminism." She said she wants to help alleviate all inequalities.

"I want to be involved," she said. "I would like to have time to be chairman of the board and to be involved in the political action of public employees," she said.

"I have a lot of personal goals," she said. Foremost among these is teaching her two boys to be "the right kind of people." She added, "It is difficult sometimes."

School tax funds frozen, await court ruling

By Dan Hofmann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Jackson County Board of Supervisors has placed in escrow the money it withheld from tax revenue payments to county school boards for the cost of tax collection in 1973.

Shirley Booker, Jackson County treasurer, informed county school districts that the board had instructed her office to deduct the 1973 collection costs from last week's final payment of 1974 tax revenues to the school boards.

"No way will we spend that money until we're assured that it's ours to spend," Louise Wolfe, chairman of the county board's finance committee, said Monday.

Wolfe said litigation was in progress in other counties to determine whether the county treasurer can deduct collection costs from school districts, municipalities and townships.

"The money will be held in escrow. If the ruling is against us, we will hand the money over to the school districts immediately," Wolfe said.

Carbondale Community High School District 165 had $15,784 withheld and the Carbondale Elementary School District 96 had $11, 872 withheld.

County governments were prohibited from withholding tax money from school boards to defray the cost of the tax collection process under the 1970 revised Illinois Constitution.

But according to Wolfe, the Illinois House passed a bill allowing the county board to collect from the school districts the actual cost of the tax collection. "We have followed it to the letter of the law. Each district pays its fair share," Wolfe said.

Wolfe said that each district's share of the collection costs had been determined by an outside accounting firm.

A total of $83,000 has been placed in escrow, according to Wolfe. She said about a quarter of the money had been received from other tax supported agencies, while the rest was withheld from last week's final payments.

The Carbondale Elementary School District 95 is investigating the possibility of filing suit to recover the money withheld. The school district has also called for the prompt delivery of money as it becomes available to the county board.

The final payment of 1974 tax revenue to the school district was not made until last week. Some school board members have said they think the county board has purposely held back on this year's payments in order to collect the interest on the tax money.

"We do not hold it (tax revenues) as long as we can just to get the interest. No way," Wolfe said.

She said any interest made on tax revenues before they go out to the tax supported agencies is applied towards the cost of collecting the taxes.

Wolfe said this year's tax revenue payments were late because the county switched over to a computer system instead of sending the bills out by hand. She said it was an unexpectedly long

Field narrowed to six in associate V-P search

Six final candidates have been selected for the position of associate vice president for academic affairs and research for services, Frank Horton, vice president for academic affairs and research, said Tuesday.

Horton said he will be contacting each of the six candidates to find out whether they are still interested in the position before he releases the names of the candidates.

Interviews with interested candidates will begin "as soon as possible," he said.

Horton said he will be meeting later this week with the search committee for an associate vice president for research and dean of the graduate college.

Arthur Mackinney, the only candidate for the position, was interviewed on campus earlier this process to switch the handwritten data onto computer cards.

"Everything that could have gone wrong has gone wrong this year," Wolfe said. She said that she accepts some of the blame for this year's late payments.

month. Mackinney is dean of graduate studies and research and professor of psychology and management at Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio.

Horton said he will meet with Mackinney on Thursday and expects to announce shortly thereafter whether Mackinney is named to the post.

Horton said previously that if Mackinney is not accepted for the position, the search for an associate vice president for research and dean of the graduate college will begin anew.

The nationwide search for the position, which began in May, originally named six candidates. One candidate withdrew before the interviews on campus, another withdrew after the interviews and three others were eliminated after they were interviewed, Horton said.

Partee rebukes Walker's 'machine'

By Bob Springer
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Gov. Daniel Walker's campaign claim that the March 16 Democratic primary is a race pitting "Daley machine bossism" against "The People" is a gross misconception, according to the Daley-picked candidate for attorney general, State Sen. Cecil A. Partee, D-26th district.

"There are two machines in this race," the president of the Illinois Senate said Tuesday, "the Daley machine and the Walker machine."

"Walker is talking about everything except his record of inefficiency and nonproductiveness," Partee said in an interview.

Expecting "no problem at all" in winning the Democratic nomination for attorney general, Partee said he will be addressing the issues "more specifically after the primary."

He did outline, however, several issues which he said his office would be dealing with if he were elected in the November general election.

Using the courts to punish industrial and private polluters, protecting consumers from commercial fraud and "taking an innovative approach to the law" would be prime objectives of his administration, Partee said.

Partee said he "has some problems" with decriminalization of marijuana but would be in favor of such legislation if the law would be enacted for a trial period, subject to a re-evaluation after two years.

Partee's running mate for governor on the Daley-backed slate, Michael J. Howlett, the only gubernatorial candidate out of four seeking the state's highest office (two Republicans and two Democrats) who has publicly stated he favors decriminalizing pot.

Judges in the state should be elected at the lowest levels, Partee said, because "that is the only way women and minorities will get their fair share of bench seats."

Partee is president of the Senate and has served in elected office since 1956. He is a practicing attorney in Chicago, where he resides, and was noted "Most Effective State Senator" in 1971.

Partee was born in Blytheville, Ark. and received his Juris Doctorate from Northwestern University Law School.

Tania in all of us

By Sandy Mulder
Student Writer

Case No. 74-364: The United States versus Patricia Campbell Hearst has been proclaimed by the Hearst-owned San Francisco Examiner as the "Trial of the Century," but it is better known as the "trial everyone would love to forget." Tania is dead and a pale woman wearing a beige pin-striped pantsuit and salmon colored nail polish is taking the rap. She is standing on trial for a crime no Patty Hearst could commit, but a Tania could and would.

But who is Tania if she is not Patty Hearst? Tania is young, has wealthy parents, has gone to good schools and has been protected enough so that she floats in a stage of retarded development. She has everything but a social consciousness and when suddenly slapped by life, like a newborn baby, she comes up screaming. In order to better understand a Tania, let's examine the case of another Tania, one who also has retired from the political battlefield for greener pastures.

The Tania is the daughter of a famous actor father. She spent much of her time in boarding schools until she entered Vassar, where she stayed a couple of years before going to Paris to dabble at painting. She was living there, in flimsy ignorance, with her director-husband Roger Vadim at the end of the sixties when she was struck by a social disease called Vietnam.

She explained, "I started to find out about Vietnam through books and television. I began to question first our foreign policy and then our whole system. Finally I decided that I couldn't be away any more, that I had to be here and find the answers."

This Tania is called Jane Fonda by her friends, and "a very serious traitor," by former President Richard Nixon. With fellow actor Donald Sutherland and director Francine Parker, she formed the Free Theatre Association and toured Vietnam, delighting soldiers with anti-war songs and routines. She soon progressed to bigger and better causes like Women's Rights, Caesar Chavez, grapes, lettuce and any equally heavy cross that would fit across her bony shoulder blades.

When asked to explain her sudden overzealous "social awareness", Ms. Fonda said, "I don't know, for me it started about a year ago. I started waking up, you know, I lost my innocence, and once you do that, once you awaken to these things that are happening around you, you can't go back to sleep again."

Compare this confession to one from a Tania who, for a brief explosive period, lived in Patty Hearst. "I opened my eyes and realized it was time to get off my ass...I'd been brainwashed for 20 years and it only took the SLA six weeks to straighten me out." It took a heavy dose of reality to waken these Sleeping Beauties, but as "what goes up must come down," every debutante-turned-Tania usually must slide back.

Jane Fonda is now Mrs. Tom Hadyn. Since her radical leader husband turned politician, she lets herself be displayed, wearing a stylish skirt and book outfit, in People magazine; buying porkchops in a California supermarket and sending her daughter, Vanessa off to a Brownie meeting. She is no longer a Tania, nor a threat.

And neither is Patty Hearst. The same woman the SLA let out of a closet and turned into a machine gun-toting bank robber, has crawled back into the dark but safe recesses, of that same closet.

Her trial is a stage show, a chance for Defense Attorney F. Lee Bailey to perform and an opportunity for an uneasy public to exonerate a fear that a Tania might sleep in their children.

It is this same public that wants Patty set free or sent up. So why not please the people? Convict the victim and suppress the Tania in all of us a little longer. Nobody likes a Tania. Patty Hearst was as much afraid that she would be killed by the FBI as the SLA and Jane Fonda shared this fear. "People are just waiting for me to be shot down," Fonda said, "literally and figuratively, to prove that they have every right to be afraid." They are and they do.

Carbondale liquor policy raises tough questions

By Joanne Hollister
Daily Egyptian Associate Editor

South Illinois Avenue, from Mill Street to Walnut, has long been a source of controversy in this town. It is the chief place for students to congregate on weekends. It is the chief area of business for the city of Carbondale. It is downtown Carbondale.

At a recent City Council meeting, members voted against issuing a liquor license to the American Food and Beverage Co. which plans to open a new restaurant at 114 S. Illinois Ave. With this move, the council, which is also the liquor commission, has drawn a boundary line, keeping all Illinois Avenue bars and liquor-serving establishments south of Walnut Street. The only exceptions to this "rule" are the Emperor's Palace at 100 S. Illinois Ave., and the Peppermint Lounge at 101 W. Monroe St., just north of Walnut and east of Illinois Avenue.

Opposition to the granting of a liquor license came from a group of North Illinois Avenue businessmen. They cited problems of parking and litter that would contribute to the decline of sales in the area.

But what of the businesses on South Illinois Avenue, squeezed in among the bars? Surely litter and parking are a problem there.

As far as non-liquor and non-food establishments how many stores are open late Friday and Saturday night? Parking and litter are problems which face all the businesses on Illinois Avenue, from McDonald's to Vogler Ford. Keeping bars and students compressed into one area won't solve anything. If South Illinois Avenue looks like a dump, the reputation will carry all the way down the street.

The American Food and Beverage Co. planned an "$80,000 facelift" of the Hewitt Building, which the company planned to occupy, said John C. Feirich, a lawyer representing the proponents. The planned renovation is quite a bit more than any of the South Illinois Avenue businesses have done lately. Yet the already-established businesses are afraid of a decline in sales. Most likely they are afraid they will be out-done.

Since when do area businessmen become experts on what businesses will or will not do harm to an area, before the business has even been given a chance? American Food and Beverage received approval from various city offices as well as the Jackson County Health Department. In fact, the Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board had given its approval to the project a week before the council voted against it. The opposition was led by advisory board member Richard Williams, the owner of Golde's Store for Men, which is located immediately south of the Hewitt Building.

According to Feirich, Williams circulated a petition against the proposed restaurant-bar after the advisory board hearing. What is an obvious conflict of interest didn't appear to be so to Mayor Neal Eckert or other council members. Eckert said Williams was appointed to the board to represent businesses other than bars. But this situation is too close to Williams' backyard to be anything but a conflict.

Increasing the number of drinking places downtown will not cause larger crowds to congregate downtown. There are only so many students here. Opening an establishment further down the street might help alleviate overcrowding by thinning out the crowds in the Merlin's-Pizza King area.

Besides, as Mayor Eckert put it, limiting the number of licenses would provide more profit potential for those establishments already holding licenses.

The council claims it wants to alleviate parking and litter problems. There has been frequent debate on how to revitalize Illinois Avenue. The council has shown it is not Illinois Avenue's appearance it worries about, it the businessmen's wishes. At the same council meeting that members turned down American Food and Beverage's liquor license, the council approved a measure that will allow taverns to be closer than the previous limit of 1,500 feet to the SIU campus. In other words, move the bars closer to the University and let the garbage and traffic pile up there. Is this how the council feels about the University and its students? Students should show how pleased they are with the council's recent show of affection and do all their buying at the University Mall.

The Democrats: Off and Running

Carter viewed as a leading contender

Editor's note: The following is the sixth in a series of profiles of the 10 candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination. The profiles will be presented in the order received from the Associated Press.

By Dick Pettys
Associated Press Writer

Jimmy Carter, in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, paints himself as a fresh political figure who wants to erase government inefficiency and bring a high moral tone to Washington.

But since his Iowa caucuses victory, the former Georgia governor—his full name is James Earl Carter Jr.—has been accused by some critics of such traditional political gambits as being vague and inconsistent on emotional issues such as abortion and busing.

Carter, 51, began campaigning extensively around the country last year and was first regarded as too unknown to win the nomination. But he has steered his candidacy to a position of serious contention, bolstered by a 2-1 margin over runner-up Birch Bayh in Iowa.

Overcoming anonymity is nothing new for Carter. When he first ran for governor in 1966, he entered the campaign late and was jokingly dubbed "Jimmy Who?" He managed to finish a strong third, however, and four years later won a surprise victory over a former governor.

Raised on a farm, Carter graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1947 and pursued a Navy career, serving on submarines and in the atomic energy program. Carter left the Navy in 1953 because his father was dying. He returned home to Plains, Ga., to manage the family's farm and seed, peanut and fertilizer business.

Carter and his wife Rosalynn have three married sons and a young daughter. He served as chairman of the Sumter County School Board and in the state Senate from 1962 to 1966.

His presidential campaign relies heavily on volunteers—100 Georgia supporters paid their own way to New Hampshire to knock on doors—and on popular rock groups such as the Allman Brothers Band to help raise funds.

Carter's campaign plan is to do well against the field in the early caucuses and primaries outside the South and then to dispatch Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in the South.

Florida's March 9 primary—first in the South—will be a critical test for Wallace, who swept that state in 1972 with 42 per cent of the vote.

Carter, who now says he will defeat Wallace there, said earlier in the campaign that "any sort of good showing against Wallace would be considered a victory" in Florida.

He was the runaway winner of a statewide straw vote in the Florida Democratic convention last November, collecting 67 per cent of the vote. Wallace finished third, with 6 per cent, trailing Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp.

Carter, who describes Wallace as "just a perennial candidate and a perennial loser," says civil rights legislation was "the best thing that has happened to the South in my lifetime" but adds that the South has outgrown "its preoccupation with the race question."

He says he opposes a constitutional amendment to prohibit forced school busing to achieve desegregation, and as president would support any court order for busing. But he prefers the approach in Atlanta, which basically avoids busing children against their wishes.

"I don't favor mandatory busing if alternate systems can be worked out," he says.

Asked in New York recently to compare his busing position with Wallace's, Carter replied: "I would hate to describe Gov. Wallace's position on busing."

Following his Iowa victory, there were complaints that Carter misled anti-abortion forces when he proclaimed himself against abortion.

Three days later in Washington, he said he was personally against abortion but does not favor a constitutional amendment or any federal law totally prohibiting abortion or eliminating local options on the issue. He said government should do everything it can to minimize abortions.

Articulate and urbane, Carter calls for restoring confidence in government by open-meeting laws, a ban on valuable gifts to public officials and disclosure of business involvement of officials. He proposes reorganizing the "bloated" federal bureaucracy, though critics say his state reorganization plan didn't work.

As governor, Carter offended many legislators for what they said was his refusal to compromise and many of his programs—including an early childhood development proposal that the legislature rejected—were viewed as too liberal.

Carter broke through strong legislative opposition to obtain a thorough reorganization of state government. It caused a massive upheaval as small agencies were merged into larger departments, and left many bitter feelings.

Critics say the program was unnecessary and didn't work. There is no evidence that it brought the savings and efficiency Carter said it would achieve. Supporters say it made government more effective.

As president, Carter says, he would stabilize the economy through jobs, remove the attorney general from politics, simplify the welfare system, support a national health care plan and seek tax reform. Figures are generally missing from these proposals.

He says he would seek worldwide elimination of nuclear weapons and that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would not be in his Cabinet.

Letters

Insult to musical taste

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to thank Lee Tews for his letter to the Daily Egyptian (Feb. 12), expressing his displeasure with the quality of music being booked by the Cultural Affairs Committee. It was my belief, prior to his letter, that he was responsible for bringing such talentless acts as Bachman-Turner Overdrive and Olivia Newton-John to the SIU campus. I'm glad I now know his position in regard to these so-called musicians.

The booking of Bachman-Turner Overdrive and Olivia Newton-John is a direct insult, not only to my musical tastes, but also to my musical intelligence. Of all the musicians in the musical world to choose from, why these people? I attended a small college. (1,100 people) the last two years and the musical events there were just about as good as those offered here at SIU. It's hard for me to believe it's a simple matter of money. Rather, I believe it's a lack of any kind of musical knowledge on the part of the people who procure these acts.

I feel as though I'm in high school again. I'm tempted to attend the concerts just to see if they have Clearasil advertisements in between songs.

Family holidays

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is an open letter to President Brandt, The Faculty and Staff Benefits Committee and The Civil Service Employees Council.

On Abraham Lincoln's birthday each year, I work while seething over the fact that my boys are out of school celebrating a holiday and I have to work. Why can't we celebrate Lincoln's birthday as opposed to Washington's birthday? I realize those employees without school-age children are not affected, but there is a large percentage of the university community who share my sentiments. What's a holiday if you can't enjoy it with your family?

Shakespeare films

To the Daily Egyptian:

The classroom and laboratory are the principal places of learning at a university, but there is much else in the community life that is valuable, ranging from guest lecturers to sports events. I'd like to recommend one particular activity: the Shakespeare on Films series scheduled for Wednesday nights during this semester at Davis Auditorium.

Shakespeare is one of the great experiences of mankind. For too many students he is "killed" in secondary school and something to be avoided in the future. But these films, starring many of the world's finest actors, can make Shakespeare a living experience to their audiences. After all, he didn't write in Old English or even in Middle English, but rather in what is classified as Modern English. Some of the words he used have become obsolete or have changed meaning, but these handicaps are overcome when trained actors speak the lines with the proper feeling and emphasis, as part of the story and in the atmosphere captured by directors, scene designers, and costumers. These films are something to see, hear, feel, think about and discuss. They can become an important part of the continuing education of all of us.

Various campus offices (including the President's) and various members of the University community have made this series possible. It was one teacher, however, who initiated this activity and arranged for the showings—Professor Robert Griffin. Such men are a credit to the University.

Harry T. Moore

Cine-Video conference

To the Daily Egyptian:

Congratulations and commendations to Keith Vyse and his colleagues for giving us the fabulous Cine-Video Conference; a very rewarding educational and personal experience.

Peter Handy
Senior
English

Shryock's lightbulbs

To the Daily Egyptian:

Because this column has established a great tradition of dealing with controversial issues; because it has become the place for truly thoughtful SIU community members to air their views and because right will win out when illuminated by the searching spotlight of critical inquiry, I, too, have a matter of urgent importance to place before you which came to me in a flash of inspiration during the Whittemore and Lowe concert of last Thursday:

How do they change the lightbulbs in the ceiling of Shryock?

Rinella recommends division of programming

By Tom Casey
Student Writer

The programming powers of the East-Campus Resident Affairs Council (ECRAC) should be divided among the four house councils of East Campus, Sam Rinella, director of University Housing, said Monday.

Rinella told a special committee investigating possible changes in the East Campus student government structure that programming could be handled more efficiently by the individual house councils and the Black Togetherness Organization (BTO), a group designed to plan programs for the black residents of East Campus.

Schneider Tower, Mae Smith Tower, Neely Hall and the Triads are located on East Campus.

"I'm thoroughly convinced that programming is much more efficient when it is done by the individual houses or groups," Rinella said. He said that by dividing the programming responsibilities into four or five groups, the entire area does not suffer if one group is uninterested or complacent.

Currently, programming for the East Campus area is handled by the house councils and the East Campus Programming Board, an arm of ECRAC. Under Rinella's concept, the programming board would be eliminated with all Campus Housing Activity Fee money being divided between the houses and BTO.

In his testimony before the ECRAC committee, Rinella offered no definite plan for handling student government matters other than programming but said he did not oppose leaving such matters to a central East Campus government.

"It can be done within the houses, or it can be done on a composite basis," he said. "I have no problem with that."

Rinella's concept is similar to one which Sharon Justice, associate director of University Housing for programming, proposed at an earlier ECRAC committee meeting. Rinella said that he had discussed his opinions of student government and programming with Justice when she assumed her position in 1975.

"I think she is saying what I told her when she first came in," Rinella said. "I told her that you're not going to be able to program through ECRAC."

Monday's ECRAC committee meeting concluded a series of open hearings dealing with the problems of ECRAC. The committee is expected to submit a report within a week containing proposed revisions of the East-Campus student-government structure.

University Press opens internship to seniors

A two-semester internship at the University Press is now an option open to students taking English 492, "Creative Writing: Senior Writing Project," said Thomas Hatton, associate professor of English.

Earning three hours of credit the first semester and six hours the second, a student can learn how books are produced via on-the-job training. Copyreading, editing and other processes in book production are learned by the student.

Open to seniors only, the six available internships have not yet been filled for the program which begins in the fall, Hatton said. The students will be under the guidance of Vernon Sternberg, director of the University Press.

The Department of English is now in the second year of the creative writing program. Approximately 500 to 600 students took courses in the program last year.

Local committee joins effort to draft '76 peace platform

By Kathleen Takemoto
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A committee drawn from six local organizations is participating in a nationwide effort to draft a peace platform for the 1976 elections.

The committee, known as the Southern Illinois Committee for the Peace Platform, is made up of representatives from the Southern Illinois Chapter of the United Nations Association—USA, Church Women United, the Carbondale Peace Center, the Carbondale Friends Meeting, the Student Christian Foundation and the Bahai Community.

Two workshops announced

Two-week workshops for high school students interested in speech and journalism will be offered at SIU July 11 to 24.

The debate-public speaking workshop will cover analysis and research. Room and board cost for the two-week session will be $120. Applications and further information is available from Marvin Kleinau, debate workshop public hearing on peace issues in Carbondale on March 30, said Hugh Muldoon, a member of the group and coordinator of the Student Christian Foundation.

The group is also planning to distribute a "peace ballot" which has been produced by the Illinois World Peace Ministries Task Force in cooperation with the National Committee for the Peace Ballot, Muldoon said.

"The peace ballot is being circulated nationwide," he said. "It is a public opinion poll to determine where people stand on the most important issues relating to world peace."

The national committee will collate results of the ballot and hearings to draft a peace platform and will present it to the major political parties during their platform-drafting sessions, Muldoon said. The peace platform will also be presented at the major candidates in the 1976 election to see how they stand on its priorities, he said.

"If the candidate doesn't believe in these things, he or she won't get the votes of the peace-constituency," he said.

The Peace Ballot officers 48 proposals supported by organizations and individuals in peace research, education and political action. The proposals fall into six categories: steps to reverse the arms race, support for universal human rights, provision for basic human needs, measures to protect the global environment, alternative approaches to international institutions and law and reorganization of the U.S. government for a more effective peace-making and peace-keeping role.

coordinator, Communications Building, Room 2006B.

All aspects of school newspaper work from news writing to paste-up for offset printing will be studied in the journalism workshop.

Room and board cost for the workshop will be $110. Additional information is available from Manion Rice, workshop coordinator, Communications Building.

Fraternity to stage Mardi Gras events

Omega Psi Phi, a black social fraternity, will be holding its thirteenth annual Mardi Gras March 4, 5 and 6.

The theme of this year's Mardi Gras is "A Family Reunion," said Eddie Bennett, vice-president of the fraternity. All national Omega Psi Phi members, called Ques, and their affiliated Pearls, or little sister groups, have been invited to the event.

Mardi Gras will start at 5:30 p.m. March 4 with a "preview" performance by the Ques in front of Neely Hall. Members will perform their "fraternity steps," Bennett said.

A costume dance will be held at 9 p.m. in the University City Cafeteria, 606 E. College. Bennett said that a Bourbon Street replica will be constructed in the cafeteria. Events at the dance will include a "Biggest lie" contest, a Que oiling contest and contests for the most original, ugliest and funniest costumes.

Transportation will be provided to and from the dorms for the dance. Admission is 75 cents and those dressed predominantly in purple and gold will be admitted for a quarter, Bennett said.

Sorority performances will be held in the Student Center Ballrooms from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. March 5. Competing for the best performance prize will be Alpha Kappa Alpha, Sigma Gamma Rho and Delta Sigma Theta. Admission is $1.

An after-set will begin at 1 a.m. in the Student Center Ballrooms. Activities will include performances by visiting Pearl groups and the group with the best performance will receive a trophy. Admission is $1.

A semi-formal "Twenty Pearls Ball" will begin in the Student Center Ballrooms at 9 p.m. March 6. Featured activities will include performances by visiting and home Que chapters and the crowning of the Mardi Gras queen, Bennett said. Admission is $1.50.

An after-set will begin at 1 a.m. in the University City Cafeteria. The featured event will be a dance contest. Prizes will be awarded to the "best couple." Admission is 50 cents.

All proceeds from Mardi Gras will go to the home chapter.

"The truth about quality

-B. H. Kroger, 1868-1938"

Young "Barney" Kroger realized early that good food honestly presented at fair prices was what brought customers back to his grocery store again and again. He was right. Why, by 1884 some people went a whole block out of their way to go to his store!

Today, after 93 years, the company he founded still believes in offering you a choice - and letting you know when you're getting The human judgment which was Barney's only measurement is now backed up by scientific and engineering equipment, but the principle remains.

The company Barney Kroger founded still believes in his formula for a successful food store: good food honestly presented at fair prices. Millions of satisfied Kroger customers agree.

Police report vandals break in at Lincoln Junior High School

Lincoln Junior High School, 501 S. Washington St., was broken into and vandalized Sunday, Carbondale police said.

Larry Jacober, principal of the school, reported that the kitchen sinks were stopped up and the water was left running. Paint was spread around the cafeteria room and desk drawers in the assistant principal's office were ransacked. Damage estimates have not been made.

Howard Jackson, 21, of Lake Heights; Milton C. Mickens, 18, who lives at Southern Hills, and a 16-year-old juvenile were arrested

Tuesday morning for alleged battery.

They were arrested on a complaint signed by Martin Lowe, 20, of Carbondale. He reportedly got into a fight with the trio at Merlin's Bar, 315 S. Illinois Ave. Police said Lowe was struck with a beer bottle, but refused medical attention.

The trio was taken to Jackson County jail. The youth was treated as a juvenile offender. Jackson and Mickens were both released on $1,500 recognizance bond. A preliminary hearing will be held at 9:30 a.m. March 11 in Jackson County Circuit Court.

Students poll interest in customer phone mart

By Blane D. Webster
Student Writer

SIU marketing students have been asked to conduct a survey to Carbondale consumers are interested in a telephone store.

If the survey shows residents desire such service, Carbondale might have a store where persons could shop for telephones the same way they shop for groceries.

The research is primarily designed to determine how willing people would be to use a phone mart. The phone mart is a proposed telephone retail store where people serviced by General Telephone and Electric could go to buy a telephone. Buying a telephone would lower installation costs and it would permit people who move to new locations to take their phone with them.

The student chapter of the Marketing Association (AMA) at SIU has been contacted by GTE of Illinois to conduct research in Southern Illinois.

Don Eckrich, faculty advisor of the AMA, said the study will be done in three phases. The first phase will determine if people in the Carbondale area would possibly use a phone mart. The other two phases will determine if people farther from Carbondale would be interested in using the retail store.

The phone mart would be located in the University Mall. The store would carry a wide variety of styles and colors of phones, and would include a phone repair service.

WIDB names two staff posts, general manager still sought

By Ray-Urchel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Three administrative posts at the student radio station WIDB will soon be changing hands.

The WIDB Board of Directors approved two new appointments to the student radio station staff in a meeting Monday night. Joe Halpin was named program director and Eric Harper was approved for the position of traffic director. Both are filling vacated terms which will expire April 12.

Last week, Mike Hillstrom, general manager of WIDB announced that he is conducting a search to find his replacement.

Halpin, a junior in Radio and TV, replaces Todd Cave, program director since fall, 1974. Cave resigned his post in early January for personal reasons. Halpin has been music director since spring, 1975 and will continue to fill those duties.

Harper, a freshman in the School of Technical Careers, will be charged to maintenance of WIDB's computerized program logging and billing system. He replaces Dave Neesley, a graduating senior in Radio and TV. Neesley left the position for scholastic reasons.

Halpin and Harper had served in acting capacities pending board approval.

Station Manager Mike Hillstrom said last week that he gained experience in the one year that he has served as boss of the carrier-current station and would like to see another person get an opportunity to manage WIDB.

He said he will recommend a successor to the WIDB board of directors, a group of students who make the policy for the station, at its next meeting, April 12.

According to the WIDB by-laws, applicants for the position must have a minimum of six months experience at the station before they can become general manager. Hillstrom said. He said the station's operating papers would have to be revised before a person with experience at another radio station could be named to the WIDB post.

The student general manager gets a salary of $600 per year to cover work-related expenses and can serve for 30 months.

Hillstrom, a junior in radio and television, said he will work in the WIDB sales department next year. One person has applied for the position, he said, adding that he must receive written application for the position before the April 12 meeting.

He said some of the achievements of the station during his term as general manager include "narrowing down" what kinds of music listeners want as well as the amount of news and sports. He also noted that WIDB has established its sales department. In December, 1974, the SIU Board of Trustees approved a campus media policy for the SIU-C campus which allowed WIDB to sell commercial advertising.

Hillstrom said he would like to see the station become self-sufficient from its advertising revenue. He said the station budgets itself on the basis of how much money was taken in the previous month.

Cable-FM on-campus is still "a top priority" for the station in the future, Hillstrom said. "The University has taken the position that it is a legal question that they should be working on in time," he said. "If the University and Carbondale Cable vision sit down I think they can work it out."

Filmmaking awards available

Student filmmakers have an opportunity to win awards from the group that made the name "Oscar" famous. The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, in cooperation with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., is sponsoring the Third Annual Student Film Awards.

The Awards presentation will take place on June 23, 1976, in the Samuel Goldwyn Theater in Beverly Hills, Calif. Cash prizes and trophies will be presented in the categories of animation, dramatic, documentary, experimental and special jury award.

To be eligible for the competition, a film must have been completed after May 1, 1975, in a student-teacher relationship within the curriculum structure of an institution of higher learning.

Preliminary judging will be conducted by ten regional committees throughout the United States. Each film must be entered in the region in which it was made.

The regional deadline for submission of films for this year's competition is April 15. A list of regional coordinators may be obtained from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, 8049 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90210.

Counselor 'interviews' disabled for work

By David Zoeller
Student Writer

Valerie Brew, career counselor for disabled students at SIU, didn't have to learn in class that the physically handicapped must face job discrimination. She has faced it herself. And in her new job at SIU, she intends to do something about it.

Her office opened Jan. 12 as a resource service and counseling center for junior and senior handicapped students. Located in the Specialized Student Services wing of Woody Hall, the office is a joint program of Specialized Student Services and the Career Planning and Placement Center.

Brew knows from experience how the disabled are discriminated against in employment. For two years she was turned away from numerous employment agencies and job interviews for the same reason. At age five she contracted polio which partially affected the use of her arms.

"Employers tend to look at the disability instead of the ability," said Brew. "Some even act afraid of the handicapped."

To get acquainted with the students she is to serve, Brew personally visited each junior and senior disabled student registered with Specialized Student Services, passing out sample resumes. She said many of them weren't aware of her new position and were very glad to see her.

Brew plans to conduct mock interviews by asking questions she knows employers will ask. "I don't try to embarrass them but I let them know what to expect. Some employers will spend more time questioning the disabled about what they can't do rather than what they can."

Bicentennial opera to premier

By Robert Stone
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
The Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theatre will present Gaetano Donizetti's popular opera, "The Daughter of the Regiment," at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday in the University Theater, Communications Building. Directed by Mary Elaine Wallace, director of opera at the SIU School of Music, "The Daughter of the Regiment" is highly melodious and romantic comedy. The opera was adopted for the bicentennial year.

though the original setting was in Tyrol at the time of Napoleon I. To celebrate the bicentennial year with Donizetti's opera, the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theatre has changed the setting to America in 1778. During that year, French Regiments, including the Royal Deux-Ponts, arrived to help the Americans fight for their freedom from the British. The source of "The Daughters of the Regiment's" libretto (spoken dialogue) has never been located. It tells a tale of a young love—frustrated, then victorious—and gives the composer ample chance to write military rhythms, pastoral mood music and passionate love exchanges, as well as to create a role that any prima donna with a sense of humor and a lot of technique would fight to perform. The opera premiered in Paris on Feb. 11, 1840, and by 1914 it had passed its 1,000 performance at the Paris Opera Comique.

Although historically significant, its theme and spoken dialogue retain the classical pattern of light opera and the old-fashioned Broadway musical comedy...that is, boy-meets-girl, boy-loses-girl, boy-gets-girl.

Michael Hanes, director of the Marching Salukis, conducts the orchestra for the alternating casts of outstanding singers and the regimental chorus.

Sets are by Darwin Payne, associate professor of theater, and costumes all by Richard Boss, who has been costuming opera at SIU for the past ten years.

Reserved seats are available at the University Theater Box Office or at the Central Ticket Office in the Student Union. Admission is $3 for the public and $1.50 for students.

Part of the "Daughter of the Regiment" Friday-Sunday cast Frederick James, Nora Bailliff-Bostaph and David Doyle, work on their roles. The opera, which has a bicentennial theme, is scheduled this weekend at the University Theater.

Cartoons topic of talk by 'Disney Film' author

By Chris De Salvo
Student Writer

"Today's cartoons are illustrated radio, which is little more than junk," said Leonard Maltin, TV and movie critic and author of five books, who spoke at Shryock Auditorium Friday night. Maltin, author of "Disney Films," gave a film presentation on the history of Max Fleischer cartoons. Fleischer was the creator of such famous characters as Popeye, Betty Boop and Koko the Clown. He claimed his fame from 1910 to 1950 when cartoons were more dominant in the film industry.

"Fleischer's detailed characters were in many ways more intricately created than those of Walt Disney," Maltin said.

Some of the cartoons shown were the first Popeye, the first Koko the Clown and the first Betty Boop, which co-starred Koko the clown singing "St. James Infirmary" with the voice of Cab Calloway, a popular vocalist of the 1930's and 40's.

It was the censorship code of 1934 that lowered Betty Boop's dress to below her knees and caused Popeye to become less violent, Maltin said. He showed cartoons from before and after the code began.

The first Superman cartoon was also shown. It's production cost was $100,000, which was more than twice the normal cost to produce cartoons at that time. This was because of Fleischer's love for details, Maltin said.

"Today's kids still have good taste though," says Maltin. He claims they most often watch "The Roadrunner," his favorite cartoon.

Attention students pre-registering for Fall '76

Three new interdisciplinary courses will be offered in Fall '76. Each course will deal with value problems that arise in the practice of the professions and careers that base themselves upon 1) biological sciences, e.g., nursing, forestry; 2) communication arts, e.g., TV, journalism; and 3) the social sciences, e.g., corrections, rehabilitation. They are:

LAC 310 Values in the living world. Coordinators: Bengtson and Hutch.

LAC 311 Values in the communication arts. Coordinator: Lawson.

LAC 312 Applied values in society. Coordinator: Schedler.

The courses have been developed by teams of people from the humanities, the relevant disciplines, and practitioners of these disciplines. The courses will proceed by study of actual cases chosen to illustrate the kinds of value decisions workers have to make, beginning with personal choices, and moving on to decisions that involve wider and wider circles of people: communities, the professions, or the nation.

Heavy use of cinema, slides, case-presentation by workers in the fields, and site-visits will help insure the relevance of the subjects treated to the real decisions students will confront in their futures. Term projects will be the chief work asked of students.

Each course will meet twice a week, Tues.-Thurs., and one evening a week for films, site-visits, etc.

The courses are intended for the non-humanities student, do not presuppose prior work in the humanities, and are not designed to lead to a major in the humanities.

The courses are being offered under a project funded in part by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

For more information call Liberal Arts Advisement: 453-3388.

Could you be a nuclear expert? (If so, you could earn more than $500 a month your Senior year.)

Even if you're a Junior engineering or physical science major, it's not too early to start thinking about your career. And if you think you've got what it takes to become an expert in nuclear power, the Navy has a special program you should look into right away.

Why right away? Because if you're selected, we'll pay you more than $500 a month during your Senior year. (If you are presently a Senior, you can still join the program.)

What then? After graduation you'll get nuclear training from the men who run more than 70% of the nuclear reactors in the country - Navy men. And an opportunity to apply that training in the Navy's nuclear-powered fleet.

Only about 200 men will be chosen for this program this year.

Be someone special in the Nuclear Navy.

Art show: new artists, varied medium

By Sandra Mulder
Student Writer

The Faculty Art Exhibit opening in Mitchell Gallery Friday night was like a very successful wedding of good food, a good crowd and, most important, good art. It also fulfilled that old die hard wedding cliché of "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue."

The something old was the faculty. With the exception of Aldon Addington, Jan Loyd and Harris Deller, most of them have been around and exhibiting in faculty shows long enough for even the newest reviewer to notice growth in their work.

A Review

One faculty member who had something new to show was M. Joan Lintault. To call her photosensitized, stuffed pieces mere pillows would be like calling the Mona Lisa a smiling woman. Pillows are made to be sat upon but Lintault's pieces are more appropriate to be cried into. These beautifully detailed tear receptacles are shrines to the guilt and pain of memories.

Lintault's black satin photosensitized rendition of "Who Killed Cock Robin" illustrates too clearly the inherent violence in children's literature, be it old or new. Entitled "Shroud IV Obscenities," this piece would hardly be shown during the family hour, yet it's subtle message, presented so well by Lintault's excellent craftsmanship, is a haunting prophesy.

Bill Boyesen is another faculty member who has taken off in some new and exciting directions. His "Letter Opener Series" with it's DuChampion "Magic Dust" is the family jewels on display at last. Easy to overlook, it is difficult to forget, this Freudian shrine resplendent in glass, glitter and gold. Boyesen's "Paired Forms" in yellow and green are so pure and simple that they conceal the incredible amount of control required to produce the wide even lip and color distribution that Boysen has displayed. His flaired forms and blown glass goblets are soft glass ejaculations. The sucking, blooming lip explosion is made gentle by the fluid qualities of the glass and the colors applied to it. Harris Deller produced the only ceramics in the exhibit, but they were rich enough in character to make up for the loss. His blushing porcelain bowls and soup tureen and ladle were soft and easy to digest. The Red Bowl in particular was a pleasure due to the shy fierceness of it's red interior and the fluid ripple of the bowl edge.

Thomas Walsh's "2nd Wall," from the Janiculum Book, is without a doubt the most arresting piece in the exhibit. It defies interpretation despite the sexual implications in the cast bronze sections. It is Icarus poised for flight, the intellectual on the precipice, but this reviewer was afraid to interpret the 2nd wall and would rather not know what, and if, the 1st wall was.

Something is rotten in the painting department but all of the drawing in the exhibit was delightful. Michael Onken's detailed ink drawings reminded many of the "can you find the six pirates hidden in this picture" game, but closer examination revealed that Onken is playing no games with his pictures. It is murder; tribal sacrificial rites being performed with razors and knife blades and turtles. Things are being dismembered and ripped in these "through the looking glass" nightmares.

And then there's Robert A. Walsh's ink, gold ink and pencil drawings. These drawings are peaceful oases containing no entrances or exits in their complex details. They are mazes without doors, contained only by their frames on the tight preciseness of Walsh's pen tip.

Larry Bernstein's "East Window with Yellow Chair" was interesting mostly because of the "East Window with Wicker Chair" next to it. Perhaps this was intentional but there must be more to the works than determining what is different about them.

The faculty exhibit is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. until March 11. Beware of Brent Kingston's omnipotent "Weatherpane," which tends to follow one around the gallery, and demonstrates an old Dylan saying, "You don't need a weatherman to know which way the wind blows."

SIU student fills the air with her flight and music

As a child in Columbia Station,
Ohio, Mary Lynne Miller had ambitions to be a comedienne. People laughed, but not at her jokes. So she decided to become a professional pilot.

Miller, a junior in SIU's
University Studies program, said people laughed at that ambition, too,
"especially my father," a retired NASA engineer. She is sticking with flying, however, and her record seems to show that she will have the last laugh.

A jet flight to Denver was Miller's first experience with flying. She said she cried when the jet took off, but by the time she got to Denver,
she was "in love" with flying.

Her father, Gordon, wasn't pleased initially with her desire to be a pilot. But he eventually gave in, provided she start on the ground.

She began working at O'Hare
International, writing tickets, loading baggage and giving pilots their taxi clearances.
After a year at O'Hare, Miller decided that she had enough money to begin flight training. She said she chose to enroll in SIU's University Studies program because it would allow her to combine pilot training at the School of Technical Careers with her other love, music. She plays the mellophone with the Marching Sabots.

In 18 months at SIU, Miller has been awarded her private pilot's license and has compiled 200 hours of solo flight time. She has also completed the written portion of the examination for her commercial pilot's license. Still to come are the "hands on" part of the commercial test, qualification for an instrument rating, flight instructor status and qualification in multi-engine aircraft.

Miller said an unexpected help came along in January when she became the first SIU student to receive a scholarship from Beech Aircraft Foundation. The grant was worth $750.

Miller said her combination of flying and music is important to her.
"I won't be able to fly forever. As a woman, you need something to back you up."

Mary Lynne Miller, junior in SIU's University Studies program, takes to the controls. She is waiting to complete necessary requirements for a professional pilots license.

Squids cap season with two wins

By Elynn Boyd
Student Writer

The spoilers.

That would be a more fitting name for the SIU Squids wheelchair basketball team after action last weekend saw them put one team in the Midwest Wheelchair Basketball Conference cellar and ruin another team's chances for post-season play. Saturday the Squids defeated the University of Illinois Gizz Kids 45-39. The Gizz Kids came into Carbondale with a 2-7 record; one game ahead of SIU in the conference. By virtue of SIU's victory, the teams were tied for the cellar with identical 2-7 records.

The Squids were down much of the first half as a result of cold shooting and inability to keep Illinois out of the lane.

However, with 4:45 remaining in the half, SIU took the lead at 19-17. SIU had trouble hitting from the outside the first half, but a strong inside game by SIU forward Nate Quinn helped keep the Squids alive. Halftime score was 23-23.

"The second half we made some adjustments in our zone and Illinois was plagued with inside shooting problems, in addition to having difficulty finding the range from outside the key," SIU Coach Don Campbell said.

SIU held a 37-27 lead at one point in the second half, but the Gizz Kids kept chipping away at it until the Squids had a slim 39-37 lead with just over three minutes to play.

SIU dominated the boards the second half getting 14 rebounds to Illinois' five. The Squids also held Illinois scoreless for just under six minutes during the second half.

The Squids were led in scoring by Greg Palumbo with 16 points. He is also the leading scorer in the conference, averaging 18 points per game. Other scorers for SIU were Quinn with 14, guards Tim Marshall and Bill Johnson and forward Dave Mateski had four points each.

Illinois was led in scoring by forward Bob Trotter with 18 and center Paul Jarboe had 14.

Sunday's contest saw the Squids eliminate the St. Louis Rams from post-season play by virtue of a 53-39 victory. Prior to their game with SIU, St. Louis was tied for second place in the conference. A victory would have put them in the playoffs as first and second place teams in each conference advance to the sectionals.

SIU was never down by more than three points the entire game as Palumbo and Quinn hit on just about every shot.

Palumbo was top SIU scorer with a career and game high 32 points. Quinn pumped in 15, and Marshall, Johnson and forward Ron Hawkins each had two points.

The Squids displayed their best defensive effort of the year against St. Louis, Campbell said. They didn't get rattled when the Rams began the full court press, and kept their poise against the veteran team.

At the half, the Squids held a 27-19 advantage.

When asked about the team's performance in both games, Campbell said, "I'm glad we could put it together for a big finish. The Squids deserve a measure of overt success, considering the difficulties they've had to overcome this season."

Two of the difficulties Campbell spoke of were that only two of this year's players returned from last season and there was much inexperience on the part of the rookies. "But I feel everyone has turned into solid ball players," Campbell said. "It was a real accomplishment for the Squids to compete as well as they did this year, and I feel they will be the team to watch next year."

Repairs needed

Pulliam weight room closed

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The weight room at Pulliam Hall has been indefinitely closed until the floor can be repaired, Larry Schaa, coordinator of the office of Recreation and Intramurals said.

"The weight room was closed Monday afternoon when it was discovered that there was a six-inch diameter hole in the middle of the floor," Jim Malone, assistant coordinator of recreation and intramurals said.

"Undue stress on the tile floor is beginning to break away the concrete underneath the floor and knocking chunks of it into the basement," Malone said.

A temporary location for the weight room is being sought.

"We are working entirely from a recommendation from the Physical Plant," Malone said.

"We are speculating what could happen if the room were left open. A bigger hole could be made and someone could fall through or an injury less serious could result," he added.

Malone and Harrel S. Lerch, Building Maintenance superintendent, went to Pulliam Hall to examine the situation and found a number of stress cracks on the ceiling of the basement.

Malone said that before the weight room in Pulliam Hall could be reopened, a way must be found to strengthen the floor so that it can better absorb the shock of the weights being dropped on it.

But this will take time and requires bringing in experts to examine the floor.

Contact has been made with two manufacturers, Lerch said, and "as far as I know, they haven't responded to our calls, as yet. I hope to have someone down here within a week and have a recommendation as to what can be done."

"It would be less expensive to move the weight room to a ground level floor, but I don't know if there is space available."

The weight room is used 12 to 14 hours a day for programs, classes and recreation.

Illini rip advanced gymnasts

By Lee Feinswog
Student Writer

Former-Olympian Nancy Theis led the University of Illinois women gymnasts to a 97.02 to 78.74 win over SIU's advanced team.

Theis won each of the four events, and scored 36.31 to win the all-around competition, totally overshadowing strong performances by both her teammates and the SIU team.

Theis, a freshman, scored 9.4 in three of the events—the vaulting, uneven bars and the floor exercise—and scored 9.2 on the balance beam. The best showing of Saturday's meet held at the U of I was freshman Beth Wentworth's second place on the balance beam with a score of 7.70.

SIU's Kathy McCormick was third in floor exercise with a 8.17 score. A real surprise in the meet was SIU freshman Chris Evon. Evon was taken to the competition to replace the injured Larae Wagner, who sprained an ankle early last week. Evon placed third in the vaulting, scoring 7.47, and also was third in the all-around with 26.54 points.

Many of the girls had an off day for SIU and Coach Laura Krauss took that into consideration when reviewing the meet.

"I was really pleased that we increased our team total again, and if you take Theis away from them, it might have ended up different," she said. "All things considered, I think we did one heck of a job."

Saluki fencers foil Principia

SIU fencers dominated Principia College in a fencing meet Saturday, winning four of six places in the three categories.

The meet, sponsored by the women's intramural office, included three divisions: beginning men, beginning women and intermediate men. Top two finishers in each division were awarded plaques.

Taking first place in the beginning men's division was Steve Kruger of SIU, while another Saluki, Sean McDermott, took second.

Linda Warner of SIU won the beginning women's division, with Kristi Hannum of Principia finishing second.

SIU's Brian Whalin won the intermediate men's competition and Robert Balder of Principia took second.

Eldorado tops last poll

Fashionable swimmers set caps for state meet

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The women's swimming team will unveil its new white caps Friday and Saturday, complete with SIU symbol, at the Illinois State Meet at Northern Illinois University.

However, the weekend can't be misconstrued as a fashion show. Swimming is the main item of business.

Fifteen state college and university teams are entered in the two-day competition. Besides deciding who's the best swimmer, team and relay in the state, the competition is one day before qualifications must be in for nationals.

SIU Coach Joyce Craven said only 12 swimmers will be traveling to Northern for the meet, because limitations have been levied on the number of participants a team can have.

Each swimmer can only be entered in six events and not more than three a day, Craven said.

Craven said SIU has competed against all of the teams, with the exception of three. This trio is Lake Forest College, George Williams College and the University of Illinois. "Lake Forest usually has some dynamic swimmers, but very little depth," Craven said. "George Williams usually has a small squad. The U of I has been swimming outside the state, especially a lot of Indiana schools. We know they have a lot of good swimmers."

One of those good Illinois swimmers is Mary Patterson, an old butterfly opponent of Saluki Mindy McCurdy.

McCurdy said she and Patterson have been swimming against each other since they were eight years old.

"Mary has done 26.5 in the 50-yard (butterfly), but I don't know what her 100 time is this year," McCurdy said.

It's no mere happening that McCurdy knows Patterson's 50 yard times. In the past Patterson has beat McCurdy in the 50, Craven said, while the Saluki usually takes the 100-yard race.

McCurdy said there isn't any animosity between the two swimmers.

"That's my main problem, I'm too friendly with the other swimmers," she said. "I don't have the killer instinct."

This weekend will be a good chance for McCurdy to qualify for the AAU nationals in the 100-yard butterfly. The magic mark is 58.7 and McCurdy has only done a 59.6.

The state meet could provide the kind of competition which could push McCurdy under that time.

"A dual meet for me is kind of nothing. There's not the kind of competition in the butterfly which I need," McCurdy said. "At state there's a lot of competition. It's just electric."

That high level of competition has prompted Craven to say, "This will be the toughest competition for us so far this year."

Craven believes the team will do well although it lost its premier swimmer recently, Lucy Burle. The Brazilian went back to her country in order to make the Olympic team.

According to Craven, Burle's absence is missed mostly in the freestyle, but Anne Gutsick has taken up some of the slack.

"Gutsick has reached Burle's times this year," Craven said. "Anne has been a consistent swimmer in the freestyle events. She's also very versatile and can swim in other events."

Although there is no requirement for swimmers to go to the regionals March 4 to 6 at Western Illinois University, Craven said the experience is valuable.

"The regionals will give us an opportunity to see how we stand as far as times against the good competition," Craven said.

Valley championship waiting for a captor

By Dave Wiecek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Many people said that the heights of Mt. Everest would never be scaled. Others said we would never land a man on the moon. Still others said Richard Nixon would never resign from the Oval Office.

Many of those same disillusioned prophets said the SIU basketball team would never win the Missouri Valley championship in the Salukis' first year of conference competition. Considering what has happened so far this year and what happened Monday night in Texas, the fortunetellers' better clean up their crystal balls.

West Texas State beat Wichita State convincingly Monday night in Amarillo 69-62. What that means is that those two teams and SIU each have two conference losses.

Even though many people thought the Salukis were too young and inexperienced to withstand Valley competition, SIU is now in a position to win the title and a berth in the NCAA tournament.

Before this gets out of hand and SIU is beating Indiana in the finals at Philadelphia, it should be explained that the Salukis' shot at winning the title will be more difficult than defending Mike Glenn.

SIU must win its final two conference games with West Texas and New Mexico State and then, in all probability, win a playoff game for the championship. All three games are on the road.

West Texas has Tulsa to play at Tulsa, Drake and SIU (Mar. 4) at home. Wichita State finishes the season at Bradley and Drake.

Wit 'n Whiz-dom

If SIU wins the rest of its games and Wichita does the same, both will be tied for the championship. If West Texas beats the Salukis plus Tulsa and Drake, the Buffaloes will end in a tie with Wichita, if the Shockers do not lose again.

In case of a two-way tie for the championship, a playoff will be held Mar. 6 at a neutral site. If everything is going topsy-turvy and three teams are deadlocked, playoff games will be Mar. 6th and 8th. No site has been picked yet, but Tulsa is a logical guess.

"They will want to have the playoff at a neutral site that will still draw a good crowd," SIU Sports Information Director Butch Henry said.

Just one more "if" is needed to complete this collage of confusion. If the Salukis win the championship they travel to North Texas to compete in a regional that includes the winner of the Southwestern Conference and two at-large teams. The winner of the Valley will meet an at-large team.

West Texas' victory over Wichita was cause for celebration in Saluki quarters Monday night because of the opportunity it affords the Salukis.

"I can't say it surprised me that West Texas won," Saluki Coach Paul Lambert said Tuesday morning. "but I was surprised in the manner in which they beat Wichita. I kept calling West Texas periodically to get the score of the game. One time it was 57-39 (West Texas leading). The next time it was 66-56."

Lambert is a reserved man off the court. He is not quick to display his emotions. The coach was not jumping up and down and spitting quarters because of West Texas' win, but inside it was obvious that he was thrilled to have the conference title still within reach.

"It's our opportunity now," Lambert said frankly.

Lambert said that Monday night he reread several of the things that conference coaches said prior to the start of the season concerning the final outcome.

"What they were saying basically is that it could go down to the last week of the season and that anyone could win."

As he rose from behind his desk Lambert added with a broad, prideful smile. "It's the impossible dream. A lot of people were saying that when the season started and I'm sure a lot of the same people will be saying it at the end of the year."

People might also be saying at the end of the year that Paul Lambert should be the Missouri Valley coach of the year. He has had tremendous success with three and sometimes four freshman in the lineup at one time. Ballots will be sent to the media next week. The majority of should be sent back to UPI and AP with Paul Lambert's name penciled in.
